It was a very nice easy trip this one, we met up about 8.45am & travelled to Wheeny Creek where we aired down, we continued to Wollombi National Park where we again stopped as the road was closed, so everyone jumped out for a pow wow (should we, shouldn't we) the decision was "we should" continue past the sign, at this point we were told to brace ourselves the track was pretty rough but it was as smooth as a baby's bum! The council had sent a grader through there & smoothed the whole track out! So what was meant to take us an hour took us about 15 minutes to complete, so at the end of the track we stopped for morning tea. From here we continued along to the Buralow Camping grounds where we got out & had another chat. Then headed up to Kurrajong continuing around in a big circle, heading back to Wollombi National Park then headed into the Colo camping grounds for lunch where we sat for about 2 hours. There was not much 4x4ing done but it was a very nice, relaxing day & we got to chill out in the afternoon sun with some very lovely people.
